COURT

Man jailed for biting a child

GUILTY: Jordan Fenner

A HAVERHILL man has been locked up after biting
a young boy following a row about cake.

Jordan Fenner, 25, of Beaconsfield Court, Haverhill, was initially handed a suspended jail sentence in April for assaulting the toddler at an address in the town.

At the same hearing a restraining order was imposed, banning Fenner from having contact with his victim and their family.

But the sentence was activated by Ipswich Crown Court last Thursday (July 20) after it was heard Fenner flouted the restraining order by turning up at his victim's house and near their school, and had spoken to the boy's mother as she walked along an alleyway.

Prosecuting, Gavin Capper said that when Fenner's phone was examined by police, it was discovered that most messages had been deleted, but some were found which appeared to be from

MCMENEMY
@rach\_mc9CN

the boy's mother arranging meetings.

Fenner pleaded guilty to two offences of breaching a restraining order, being in breach of a suspended sentence order and failing to turn up for an appointment to carry out unpaid work – which was part of his original sentence.

The court heard that Fenner's conviction for assault causing actual bodily harm followed an incident at an address in Haverhill when he had become involved in a row about a cake.

The incident in October last year, left the boy with five separate bite marks.

Appearing for Fenner, John Kellett said there was "solid evidence" that some of the contact made by his client with the boy and his mother had been at her instigation.

However, Fenner realised that it had been wrong to breach the restraining order, and understood that court
orders must be obeyed.

Sentencing him, Judge
Rupert Overbury imposed a two-month prison term for breaching the suspended sentence order and activated 10 months of the suspended sentence, leaving
Fenner facing a total of 12 months' custody.

Judge Overbury, who said the restraining order would remain in force indefinitely, told Fenner: "Where a court passes a sentence with particular conditions, the court expects those conditions to be satisfied and carried out."

The judge, describing the attack on the boy as "particularly nasty", said the boy's mother had been wrong to instigate any meetings but added: "You have chosen to breach the court order and that was your choice."

WEDDING

WEDDING MARCH: Shaun walks his bride Charlotte down the aisle a year after losing both his legs in a road accident

Aisle do! Shaun fulfils his dream

JUST over a year after losing both legs following a hit-and-run car crash, Shaun Whiter fulfilled his ambition of walking down the aisle with his bride.

Shaun, 28, of Burrough Green, married Charlotte Way at the village church on Friday. On July 1 last year, Shaun was left for dead by a road near Newmarket and later had to have both his legs amputated.

He said during his recovery: "In hospital, the moment I realised I had lost my legs, the first thing I did was to ask my fiancée Charlotte if we were still getting married."

"I was terrified she wouldn't want to any more."

"When she said 'yes', the next thing I said was I was going to walk down the aisle."

Shaun's recovery exceeded expectations after learning to walk on prosthetic legs just five months on from the crash.

Among the wedding guests was photographer Thomas Ellwood, who said: "The wedding was magnificent. Shaun said his main ambition was to walk down the aisle on his wedding day – well he smashed it!"

SAMAR MAGUIRE
@SamarMaguireCN

"His pure determination, eagerness to succeed is astonishing. As you can imagine the church was filled with tears, joy, and celebration for the couple."

"I've got to know Shaun and Charlotte rather well, and even I had to put aside the camera for a jiffy to wipe away a tear."

Among his list of accomplishments since losing his legs, Shaun completed a 150-mile tour of Suffolk using a specially built handcycle in May this year.

He raised money for the East Anglian Air Ambulance charity, who helped to save Shaun after the accident.

Speaking at an event earlier this month, he said: "It's crazy what's gone on in a year. Obviously I put my head down and I just wanted to do my rehabilitation, which is still ongoing."

"I'm now walking and I'm fully mobile and fully independent, which is great."

SEARCH

Police praise the community after missing man found

POLICE have praised the "amazing efforts" of locals after an elderly man with dementia who went missing was found by a member of the public.

Haverhill police issued an appeal after David Blanks, 79, from Kedington, went missing in the Suffolk village.

He had last been seen at 4.40pm on Sunday, leaving his home and heading towards the Nisa store on Reynold Road.

But after dozens of villagers hit the streets to help find Mr Blanks, he was spotted by one of the search party on Rectory Road just before 9pm on Sunday night.

Haverhill Police took to Twitter to thank residents for their "fantastic work" in helping to locate the elderly gentleman.

They also praised the local vicar and congregation, who opened up the church while the search was under way.

"The message came out on Facebook that an elderly gentleman had gone missing," said Reverend Derek Hollis, of the Parish Church of Saint Peter and Saint Paul in Kedington.

"At that moment my wife and I went to look in the churchyard to make sure he was not there. We then went round the village with our dogs."

"Quite a lot of people involved in the search were already out by the time I found out about it."

"I heard he [Mr Blanks] and his wife are both safe and well."

Police reported that a National Police Air Service helicopter was in the air for one and a half hours and Suffolk Lowland Search and Rescue were also on standby.

MISSING AIRMAN

Corrie's mum glad of 'hope' over tip U-turn

CORRIE: Went missing after a night out

THE mother of missing RAF gunner Corrie McKeague has expressed her relief at police halting the filling in of the area of landfill where her son is believed to be buried.

Police conducted the painstaking search for 20 weeks, sifting through more than 6,000 tons of rubbish in a bid to uncover Corrie's remains, but called off the search on Friday after they said they had found "no trace" of the missing 23-year-old.

Nicola Urquhart's comments come after Corrie's father, Martin McKeague, temporarily blocked off access to the Milton landfill site before talks with Suffolk Police on Monday.

Following those talks, police reiterated that the search would continue, although it was not a criminal investigation. Officers will examine incinerated waste in the coming weeks.

A petition has also been launched urging police to continue the hunt for Corrie, and has so far gathered almost 25,000 signatures.

Police called off the search of

It is feared he fell asleep in an industrial bin following a night out with friends in Bury St Edmunds, on September 24 last year.

Writing on the Find Corrie page, Nicola, 48, wrote: "I am so pleased that Suffolk Police have heard our voices and listened."

"The decision they came to, without us having to say any more than was said over the weekend on here and in the press.

"They have heard our concerns at the landfill being handed back and being filled in and have now said although handed back, it will not be touched and will remain in the same condition until after the review by an independent force.

"So now, without the need for "This does not mean they are going to search the landfill, but as I wrote in an earlier post, we now have not lost that option.

"This does not mean the police will start searching again, but it does mean they are listening to us and will take what we say into consideration. This is called HOPE."

Big day of fun for youngsters

RAIN did not dampen the spirits of youngsters enjoying Haverhill's Big Day Out.

The town council-organised event on the recreation ground yesterday featured a host of fun activities for families, including a travelator, bikes, bungee trampolines and a climbing frame.

There was also an attraction called Kids' Inflatable World, and face-painting in the Castle Manor Academy tent.

Spokesman Nick Keeble said: "There were lots of kids involved and they enjoyed the attractions despite the rain. Twenty local organisations were represented."

The day-long event, which ran from 10am until 4pm, was laid on by the council free of charge, with support from Suffolk County Council.

Support for Farageistas

ALAN Shepherd, a gentleman whom I have known for decades as a consistent – though increasingly strident – Tory loyalist, seems no longer to be loyal.

He has called for the return of Nigel Farage to front line politics. It will be recalled by many that, for good or ill, Mr Farage has done as much as any other “leading” politician to destroy the Tory party.

Mr Shepherd’s call doesn’t seem to fit with his frequent comments on the Facebook pages of Lucy Frazer, Mr Shepherd’s, and my, Tory MP here in South East Cambridgeshire.

The comments are usually complimentary and along the lines of “Well done, Lucy” and “Keep up the good work”.

It is noticeable that Mr Shepherd never criticises the MP.

As Mr Shepherd has called for the return of Nigel Farage to front line politics I am now wondering whether this indicates that there is significant support for the Farageist cause among local Tories.

Indeed, is it possible that Lucy Frazer herself is also sympathetic to the Farageistas?

If this were to be so, the lady would not be lonely, for other “leading” Tories are crypto-Farageistas, if not openly Farageist, as are many MPs.

Do these people want the complete melt-down of their old party? If so, all they need to do is follow Alan Shepherd’s lead.

The melting heat has just been turned up several notches.

Geoffrey Woollard

Political facts and figures

ALAN Shepherd seems to think that it’s OK for him to make personal comments about other correspondents but he was put out because I did the same to him.

Let me give him some advice. If you can’t take it, don’t dish it out.

He then had a rant about past Labour governments and in particular the Blair and Brown governments which he claimed were an unmitigated disaster.

No facts or figures, just his jaundiced opinion.

Then he made comments on Prof Richard Murphy’s study which found that Tory governments always borrow more than Labour ones.

Unable to dispute these findings, he then uses the old Tory tactic to cloud the issue by ignoring the evidence and smear the author.

As it happens, something I’ve found out, is that since 2010 the Tories have borrowed more than all the Labour chancellors put together.

I look forward to Alan Shepherd’s abuse. I need a laugh.

Throughout his letter he just vents his bile and spite about Labour.

I do hope that made him feel better.

But he made no attempt to defend the last seven years of Tory austerity which has failed.

Lords seat for Nigel Farage

THE letters from Mr Woollard and Mr Doland certainly warrant a response, and it shows how the name Farage clearly strikes fear and dread into the hearts of the Remain lobby.

Mr Woollard, a retired farmer and a friend of mine, apparently still enjoys a spot of muck-raking.

In his latest correspondence he attempts to create a divide between me and my MP Lucy Frazer.

I have to inform him that I state my own views and that there is never any form of collusion whatsoever. She possibly would not agree with me anyway.

I have noticed, however, that Lucy, having worked extremely hard, has played a major role in securing another £1.3 billion pounds towards the education budget, which of course is no mean achievement.

I seem to recall that past efforts in which Mr Woollard was involved resulted in total failure.

As for Mr Doland, all his letters are much of the same but having lost most of his recent arguments on Brexit, and the economy at the hands of Robert Boorman and Deb Roberts I can understand his frustration.

However, if it signals an end to bellicosity and belligerence, so much the better.

Now gentlemen, how about a seat in the Lords for Nigel, would that be any good?

Calls for gull cull are wrong

DURING the summer period, there are always alarmist stories of gulls “attacking” people – which inevitably lead to calls to cull them.

The holiday period coincides with the birds’ breeding season and, being such fierce defenders of their offspring, the birds may occasionally become aggressive in order to see off any perceived threat to their nest and children. These “attacks” are usually exaggerated by the media and are very rare indeed.

To cull wild animals for protecting their babies is nothing short of ludicrous.

Despite this, if gulls are causing issues, there are a number of effective, humane methods of deterrence that can be used to discourage birds from nesting on flat roofs or chimneys, or from rummaging in our rubbish.

Animal Aid has free advice sheets that detail the number of humane, non-lethal methods of deterrence available.

Risks of taking the pill

IT is sad that Boots the Chemist has capitulated on the matter of selling the “morning-after-pill” after a concerted campaign orchestrated by the British Pregnancy Advisory Service (BPAS).

The pill has been spoken about as a mere “contraceptive pill” – it is not! It is an abortifacient drug, a high dosage synthetic hormone.

It has the potential to be dangerous and have serious consequences for a young teenager if they took it like a contraceptive pill on a regular basis and unsupervised.

This product as I understand it, is sold over the counter. Are there any consultations or checks like there are when a doctor puts someone on the contraceptive pill?

HEALTH

Walking a dog might help to keep the elderly more active

DOG walking could be the key to keeping older people active, a new study has confirmed.

Older dog owners spend less time in the day being sedentary, researchers from Cambridge University and the University of East Anglia found.

They discovered that regularly walking a dog boosts levels of physical activity in older people, especially during the winter.

The research, published in the Journal of Epidemiology and Community Health, analysed data from a long-term study which is tracking the health and well-being of thousands of people living in Norfolk.

Researchers from the University of East Anglia (UEA) and the University of Cambridge found that owning or walking a dog was one of the most effective ways to beat the usual decline in later-life activity.

Of the 3,123 people taking part in the study with an average age of 69.5, 18 per cent reported having a dog in their households.

Two-thirds of dog owners walked their pets at least once a day.

The researchers found that regular dog walkers were more active and less sedentary on days with the poorest conditions than non-dog owners were on the days with the best conditions.

In the worst weather, those who walked their dogs had 20 per cent higher activity levels than non-dog owners and were more active for 30 minutes each day.

The authors say their findings suggest that dog walking "may have considerable potential to support the maintenance of physical activity in older adults".

It could also form part of exercise on prescription schemes.

They acknowledge that dog ownership is not possible for some older adults but added: "Dog walking opportunities for older adults who do not own a dog could be organised by local community organisations or charities, and dog walking groups may provide wider well-being benefits associated with increased social contact."

WAY TO GO: A dog walker on the banks of the Great Ouse at Godmanchester

Borrow My Doggy, a nationwide network which provides regular group dog walks for people who are not dog owners, might be one such option, they suggest.

"We know that physical activity levels decline as we age, but we're less sure about the most effective things we can do to help people maintain their activity as they get older," said study lead author Dr Yu-Tzu Wu, from the University of Cambridge.

"We found that dog walkers were much more physically active and spent less time sitting overall.

"We expected this, but when we looked at how the amount of physical activity participants undertook each day varied by weather conditions, we were really surprised at the size of the differences between those who walked dogs and the rest of the study participants."

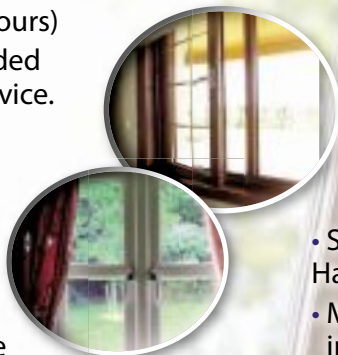

Project lead Prof Andy Jones, from UEA, said: "We were amazed to find that dog walkers were on average more physically active and spent less time sitting on the coldest, wettest and darkest days than non-dog owners were on long, sunny, and warm summer days.

"The size of the difference we observed between these groups was much larger than we typically find for interventions such as group physical activity sessions that are often used to help people remain active."

PLANNING

International toymakers Jellycat plan to extend their warehouse

EXPANDING: Jelly Warehouse on Skippers Lane, West Wickham

POPULAR international toymakers Jellycat are expanding their warehouse in South Cambridgeshire with the potential for new jobs.

The warehouse at Wrattling Common Airfield, near Haverhill, will be getting a massive 1,472 square metre extension in the new year.

The extensive addition was approved by officers of South Cambridgeshire District Council under delegated powers.

A planning spokesperson for South Cambridgeshire District Council said: "We recognise that as our economy evolves, so too do the needs and demands of the businesses themselves. Supporting the development of our local economy remains a key local priority, and this expansion offers the West Wickham-based firm the opportunity to continue to grow its business within South Cambridgeshire, and to potentially create jobs for the local community too."

@rach_mc9CN

Jellycat is one of the UK's largest toy manufacturers with additional stores and boutiques across the US, Europe, Africa and the Middle East.

Permission was granted by South Cambridgeshire District Council in June and includes a 1,472 sq m extension with 964 sq m of warehouse space with 508 sq m of office, amenity and dispatch space.

The existing building, housed in a wartime aircraft hangar, will also get a re-model after permission was achieved following a comprehensive project involving Cheffins Planning and Development.

Ian Smith, director of planning and development at Cheffins, comments: "Jellycat is one of the region's most well-established employers and, by extending their current premises, the company is investing a significant sum into the local area.

"There have been a number of similar applications over recent months which goes to show the adaptability of old building structures to modern logistics businesses, and as distribution becomes increasingly important in the region, we expect to see similar plans for extensions over the coming months."

Work on the extension is set to begin in early 2018, with completion expected later that year.

A spokesperson for Jellycat said: "It is correct that Cheffins has secured planning permission for significant extensions to the warehouse premises for Jellycat. Planning of what the space will provide is in the early stages, and we have no additional information to add at present."

Love your home and garden this Summer

Get the cottage garden look with these stunning plants

The sight of majestic delphiniums, conical lupins and soft, scented roses mixed with colourful clematis climbing up wicker wigwams and sweetpeas filling the air with their fragrance, always conjures up an image for me of the idyllic cottage garden.

It's amazing how many traditional cottage garden plants also attract bees, butterflies and other wildlife. Neatly upright lavender and sprawling violet catmint are a magnet for bees, as are foxgloves, wild geraniums and campanulas.

While a cottage garden may seem a glorious mixture of traditional plants nudging and overlapping each other in a seemingly random display, the overall effect will be more successful with some planning.

Heed these tips if you're planning to create your own cottage garden.

Keep colours in harmony

The colour scheme should be in harmony - traditionally soft purples, blues and pinks - with height created by climbers which clamber up obelisks and archways, or scented plants situated near old wooden benches or painted wrought iron seats to add to the romantic feel of the plot.

ADVERTISING FEATURE

Choose evergreen backdrops

Select backbone evergreen plants such as holly or yew to create a framework, accented by perennials with strong architectural value such as alliums and irises - which can be repeat-planted within the border, mixed with plenty of old-fashioned favourites including aquilegas, foxgloves, pinks, hollyhocks, Michaelmas daisies and poppies. Include plants that self-seed, which will often pop up in just the right place.

Naturalistic-looking grasses can be planted in swathes to create softness and movement, dotted with wild flowers, to create a vague structure to the overall informal scene.

Plant a tree or hedge for birds

Consider making the most of an existing tree or planting a hedge, providing food and shelter for many birds. Don't forget berries - fruiting hedges could produce crab apples, blackberries and rosehips, again attracting many birds. Cottage gardens shouldn't appear organised - but the best ones are, without the visitor even noticing.

For a classic touch, add roses

Roses are a cottage garden favourite. Make sure you choose a fragrant variety. I love the David Austin rose 'Desdemona', with its soft pink buds emerging creamy white, or plant the deep pink 'Gertrude Jekyll' with the subtle white Clematis 'Henryi'. Roses enjoy the same situation as clematis - rich soil, in full sun or light shade, plenty of plant food and lots of water until they are well established.

For a bold look, try alliums

The giant lollipop flowers of alliums provide a brilliant accent in the border. Some plant them at the front of borders lining gravel driveways, but you can just as easily include them in a cottage garden border to add structure and a talking point to the scene.

For some colour, add nepeta

Along with lavender, nepeta (catmint) provides an impressive swathe at the front of a border, thanks to its clouds of tiny mauve flowers on gentle spikes, which flower from early summer to autumn. The most widely available is 'Six Hills Giant' which grows up to 90cm and can be a bit unruly. A less slouching type is 'N. racemosa 'Walker's Low', which is more upright and reaches about 60cm.

FOOD & DRINK

THESE chickpea fritters (panelle di Fabrizia, or what Rachel calls, 'Fabrizia's chickpea fritters') make great pre-dinner small bites.

INGREDIENTS

300g chickpea flour
1ltr cold water
Olive oil, for frying
Lemon wedges, to serve
Salt

METHOD

1. In a large pan, whisk together a litre of cold water and the chickpea flour until it forms a smooth batter. Tip the batter into a large, heavy-based pan over a medium-low heat and whisk steadily. After 10 minutes or so, the batter will start thickening, and now you really need to whisk to make sure it doesn't stick to the bottom. Once the mixture is coming away cleanly from the sides of the pan, it is ready.

2. Now, moving swiftly, use a spatula to smear the batter on to a clean marble surface, a large flat tin, or plates. The layer should be 3-5mm thick. Let the mixture cool completely. If you have spread it on to a work surface or tin, it can be cut into squares where it is. If you have smeared it on to plates, peel off the layer of batter carefully and cut each one into slim wedges.

3. In a pan or deep frying pan, heat the oil to frying temperature, which is 180°C, or when a cube of bread dances on the surface of the oil and turns golden after 20 seconds. Fry the squares or wedges in small batches until they are crisp and golden.

4. Lift from the oil with a slotted spoon on to kitchen paper to drain briefly, then transfer to a serving plate. Sprinkle with salt and serve straight away, with lemon wedges.

Roddy, steady, cook...

FOOD WRITER RACHEL RODDY TALKS TO ELLA WALKER ABOUT THE INSPIRATION BEHIND HER NEW COOKBOOK AND WHY SHARING MEALS AND RECIPES IS SO PERSONAL

RACHEL RODDY has recently been showered in trophies, winning two at the 2017 Guild of Food Writers Awards. But flicking through the 44-year-old food blogger and columnist's new cookbook, Two Kitchens, she already seems to have attained a kind of foodie nirvana.

A follow on from her 2015 cookbook Five Quarters, its title refers to Rachel's tiny kitchen in her flat in Rome, as well as the big, basic cooking space at her partner Vincent's family home in the industrial Gela, Sicily, where they spend their summers, and it features the "really simple food" that has come from both.

"My kitchen is the kitchen of Rome and England; my Northern grandma, every cookbook I've ever read, every TV programme I've ever watched; every bit of advice I've ever been given – and also, these are recipes that you're going to make your own. It is 'Two Kitchens' but it could be called 'Many Kitchens,'" explains Rachel, who was born and raised just outside London.

She has lived in Rome for the past 12 years – arriving one day with just a rucksack and deciding to stay – but England still spools into her Italian life, and her Italian kitchens.

"I'm very aware of cooking with my mum and my grandmas when I'm here. I miss them a lot, so they're really in the kitchen with me when I cook," says Rachel, noting that having her son "brought that into sharper perspective".

Two Kitchens is split into 24 sections, each devoted to a specific ingredient (aubergines, ricotta, peas, oranges, etc), typical to her two Italian spheres.

The most iconic Sicilian recipe is caponata, a sweet and sour aubergine stew that "everyone makes – it's absolutely delicious", but in true Italian style, there can be spats over how it ought to be prepared.

"Italians still think English people can't cook!" says Rachel with a laugh. "They have really strongly held opinions about how you do things and no compromise from that at all."

"I tend to listen – there's a lot of discussions about how things should be done. I sometimes get involved, but I always regret it afterwards."

That doesn't mean she isn't fascinated with the way other people think about and cook food, though.

"It's always a lovely thing to ask someone to show you how to make something, because it's quite an intimate act, and you often get the most wonderful information from people when they teach you," she explains. "I'm not so interested in the recipe, but people's tips and secrets."

Rachel writes about food by weaving stories into recipes, and vice-versa.

"We all eat all the time, whether it's good, bad or indifferent food – it's very tied up with love and place and need, so when you write about food, you write about life," says Rachel. "It's another way of sharing: The way you share a meal, you share memories."

■ Here are three recipes from Two Kitchens to try at home.

Two Kitchens: Family Recipes from Sicily and Rome by Rachel Roddy (above), photography Rachel Roddy and Nick Seaton, is published in hardback by Headline, priced £25.

THERE'S a name that crops up quite a lot when I'm reading about wine, at wine tastings, drinking wine and generally being a wine geek. The name is Jean-Claude Mas and it's highly likely you'll have seen the brand he represents – Domaines Paul Mas.

You can pop into most supermarkets and find one of their wines but despite the extent of the range, the quality is always really good.

Jean-Claude took over his father's 35 hectares in Bordeaux in 2000 and steered the business in a different direction, acquiring a range of wineries across the Languedoc. There are now 12 Domaines Paul Mas estates across the region.

Here are four of their whites, perfect for summer.

RAISE A GLASS

WITH JANE CLARE

■ Paul Mas Vinus Frisante (£8, Morrisons, 12% abv): You've just got to love a drop of fizz. This wine is new on shelves this month and is a blend of 55% picpoul and 45% chardonnay. Sparkling wines from the Languedoc are growing in popularity and here the local picpoul (which I think has the nickname lipstinger!) adds a good bite to the blend with the chardonnay adding body and structure. There's plenty of green apples and a good citrusy zest.

■ Domaine Paul Mas Estate Marsanne 2016 (£10.99, or £8.99 in a buy six deal, Majestic, 13% abv): This is a classic from the Paul Mas stable, with grapes grown on the limestone and clay soils of the Limoux and Carcassonne areas, blended with wine from grapes from the warmer area of Hérault. It has aromas of lemon and peach, with floral wisps of blossom and honeysuckle. It has a touch of creaminess in the mouth, where honey, peach and lemon, all play their part.

■ Paul Mas Vinus Clairette du Languedoc 2016 (£8, Morrisons, 12% abv): This wine hails from the smallest and oldest appellation in the Languedoc which was created in 1948. The grape itself is one of the oldest in the region. It has traditionally been used as a blending grape but here it flies solo and very nicely too. It has a nose of ripe red apples, springtime flowers and peach; in the mouth flavours of citrus and apple cradle a mouthwatering acidity. ■ Paul Mas Reserve Languedoc Blanc 2016 (Waitrose, £8.99, 13% abv): Here's another new wine for this summer and I love it. It's a blend of 40% grenache blanc with marsanne, vermentino and viognier having an equal remaining share. Some of the blend has had oak contact which brings complex notes. The wine has aromas of vanilla, pineapple and apricots; and what's this? A touch of cinnamon? Perhaps. Those fruits can be found as soft mouth-filling flavours too.

■ Discover more at paulmas.com and on Twitter @paul_mas

■ Also in my glass... Summer time is a happy time and Aldi's popular Belletti Prosecco Spumante (11% abv) is now available in a magnum size at £12.99 which is perfect for sunny celebrations. This sparkler – which sells at £5.79 in 75cl – was one of my top fizz tips last Christmas. It has aromas of apples and pears, a touch of lemon, and hints of peach. Mmm, lovely.

Creature carnival

STARTING off with cinema this week, we have an animated escapade of a canine kind... After a radio bonks him on his noddle, Bodi the dog realises that his destiny is not as a guard dog in the mountains (boring) but as a Rock Dog (PG) or maybe even Rock God. You can see Bodi's adventures on Friday, July 28 at 10.30am.

There's an altogether more serious look at life, and history, with Churchill (PG) on Tuesday, August 8. On the brink of D-Day, Churchill worries that posterity will remember him as an architect of slaughter; Brian Cox stars as the man himself, Miranda Richardson his beloved Clemmie and John Slattery (from Mad Men) as the American President, Eisenhower.

Things are quiet at the Arts Centre this week, but the town council is holding a number of events around town. On Wednesday, August 2, there's the first of three Community Fun Days – Picnic in the Park at East Town Park. There'll be a chance to see a free performance of Dogs Don't Do Ballet by The Little Blue Monster Theatre Company at 11.30am and 1.30pm, plus free workshops including clay modelling, dance, drums, junk jewellery, mini-gardening and giant wooden games. On the following Wednesday (August 9), The New Croft is holding the Chalkstone Fun Day from 11am and on Wednesday, August 16, from 11am to 3pm, the Leiston Community Centre hosts the Clements Fun Day.

The summer holidays also sees the return of the town council's free Tribute Nights in the Market Square. On Saturday, August 6 there will be performances by Pop Rockin' 80s and Bye Bye Baby, a celebration of the music of Frankie Valli & The Four Seasons. On Saturday, August 19, the performers storming the stage will be Little Mixture (A Little Mix tribute), Swinging with the Stars (popular swing/big band music) and A Night at the Movies (all the best songs from all the films including Mamma Mia and Dirty Dancing).

Cardboard Carnival on Tuesday, August 8 at 11am, sees the clever people at Lempet Puppet Theatre create a show full of fantastical animal puppets made out of card. There'll be a lion, an elephant and a tortoise wearing a tutu. This playful show, which was inspired by the famous piece of music The Carnival of Animals by Camille Saint-Saens, might even encourage you to make your own card creations. More family events in the near future include Little Red Robin Hood on Thursday, August 17, at 2.30pm and on Friday, August 25, The Hairy Maclary and Friends Show at 1.30pm and 4pm.

- Friday, July 28, 10.30am – Rock Dog (PG)
- Tuesday, August 8, 7.30pm – Churchill (PG)
- Wednesday, August 2, 11am-3pm, Picnic in the Park – East Town Park
- Saturday, August 5, 8pm – Great Big Tribute Night, 1

UPGRADE: Limited edition 4x4

Crossing the Rubicon with capable Jeep

JEEP is expanding its range of Wrangler 4x4 vehicles with the arrival of a new limited edition, the Rubicon Recon.

Revealed at this year's Geneva Motor Show, the Jeep Wrangler Rubicon Recon offers improved 4x4 capability thanks to specific off-road components including a stronger front axle and heavy-duty cast rear differential covers.

Based on the existing Wrangler Rubicon model, the new Recon adds adventure styling to the 4x4 capability thanks to equipment like 18-inch Granite Crystal aluminium wheels, a black dual top and a dual-vented Power Dome hood with a black-silhouette "Rubicon" decal.

The newcomer is available in two- and four-door styling and is powered by Jeep's 3.6-litre V6 petrol engine delivering 284bhp, matched to a five-speed auto gearbox.

Three exterior colours – Gobi, Bright White and Granite Crystal – are up for grabs and prices are £40,505 (two-door) and £42,175 (four-door).

CAMERA: Built-in dashcam

New C3 is Citroen's top-selling UK model

CITROEN'S new C3 supermini has reached 10,000 sales since its official launch in the UK.

It means the C3, which went on sale in January, is officially the French brand's top-selling model in the UK once again.

In all markets combined, almost 160,000 sales have now been recorded for the new model.

PureTech petrol and BlueHDi diesel engines are available along with the latest generation EAT6 automatic gearbox.

There are some 36 different exterior colour combinations and prices start at £11,395 for a PureTech 69 Touch model.

LOST TIME: Fiat 124 Spider revives the Swinging Sixties

Spider is a rival for MX-5

IT'S more than 50 years since its namesake shook up the sports car scene of the Swinging Sixties, but the Fiat 124 Spider is making up for lost time.

Sexy-looking with a splash of Italian style, the 124 has been designed at Centro Stile in Turin and takes its inspiration from the 1966 original.

Mazda has had the affordable roadster scene to itself in recent times and even though the Spider is based on the Japanese brand's MX-5, the Fiat edges a close vote.

One reason is down to turbo power, the 124 featuring a 1.4-litre Fiat MultiAir engine that's been boosted up to 140bhp.

The upshot is some lively performance with acceleration of 0-62 in 7.5 seconds and a top speed of 134mph, marginally quicker than the 2.0-litre Mazda.

The Spider is a treat to drive, especially through long winding bends and country lanes, responding positively to the short-throw, six speed gearbox and rear-wheel-drive set up.

Prices start at £19,545 for the Classica which includes air-con, a leather steering wheel and gear knob, cruise control, alloy wheels, Bluetooth connectivity and keyless start. Lusso models are priced at £22,295 and the top Lusso Plus trim £1,000 more at £23,295.

MG recreates a bit of the old magic with GS

MG, that typically British brand made its fortunes by providing relatively affordable performance options for those drivers who would otherwise have struggled to attain the rarefied heights of true sports car driving.

This philosophy stretched from the vintage years right to modern times with cars like the MG Midget, MGB and the inimitable Magnette ZB of the classic years.

But with the collapse of the Rover empire, the MG brand was sucked into the whirlpool of oblivion and many thought that it would never emerge.

But in the automotive world you should never say never because the brand re-emerged under Chinese ownership to do just what MG does best – provide sporty cars for the masses.

Unfortunately, you will not find any two-seat sportsters in the range but there are some zestful cars that do their utmost to re-create at least some of the old MG magic.

And one of the latest is a family-friendly SUV, the MG GS.

Launched at The London Motor

FAMILY-FRIENDLY: The GS is worthy of the MG name

Show in May 2016, the model surpassed 500 unit sales in just 176 days – reaching the milestone faster than any of the manufacturer's other vehicles, even its supermini, the MG3.

The success of the MG GS demonstrates market demand for a fun, easy to live with SUV at a sensible price.

Like many others of its kind, this SUV makes sense – commuting, shopping, school run and weekend adventure all rolled into one.

And a big benefit is that its handling is worthy of the MG name. Best not to chuck it around like a TC of 1945, but experience the best of its abilities and it is plain that it delivers agility and is an engaging drive.

It is very comfortable with sports seats in the front and adjustable seats in the back that recline and fold completely flat.

I drove the GS Excite model that can be had for £17,495. With a 1.5 four-cylinder petrol engine delivering 166bhp this is a neat, fast little number with 118bhp on tap.

Having driven all of the "Chinese" MGs one thing was abundantly clear – the build-quality and standard of finish on these cars has improved tremendously.

With three trim levels offering customers plenty of specification at great prices, the MG GS aims to be very competitive in its class. With bags of space, a 1.5 turbo petrol engine, the option of manual or seven-speed dual-clutch transmission (DCT) and tons of spec, it certainly makes a statement.

Automatic headlights, air con, an intelligent stop-start engine and cruise control come as standard.

There's nothing middle of the road about the mid-range Excite model with rear parking sensors and camera, plus DAB radio and Bluetooth.

Vauxhall's performance-oriented Insignia GSi is on the way

VAUXHALL is set to debut its all-new performance-oriented Insignia GSi at the Frankfurt Motor Show in September.

It has just released the first details of the new motor which it says will deliver high levels of performance through all-wheel drive, a new chassis and Brembo brakes.

The Insignia GSi will be powered by a 2.0-litre turbo petrol engine.

It has an eight-speed automatic gearbox, which can be operated via a paddle-shift on the steering wheel. Exterior design updates include chrome air intakes at the front and a rear spoiler.

Inside, the car has leather sports seats, a leather sports steering wheel and aluminium pedals.

DS introduces new high-tech trim level

GROWING demand for onboard technology has seen French luxury car brand DS introduce a new high-tech trim level on its DS 3 range of hatchbacks. The new Connected Chic trim features full smartphone hook ups such as Apple CarPlay and Android Auto as well as sat nav and a seven-inch full colour Mirror Screen display. Priced from £16,115, it will sit between the current Chic and Performance Line trim levels. DS says that the extra equipment included on the Connected Chic models would cost £2,000 if added separately and that the new level is priced at £900 more than the current Chic grade cars. The new trim will feature across the line up of three PureTech petrol and one BlueHDi diesel engines used in the DS 3.

Mercedes' touch of class for pick-up truck

THE new Mercedes X-Class luxury pick-up truck will be priced from around £35,000 when it goes on sale in the UK later this year.

Although prices for the British market have still to be confirmed, Mercedes has announced the new premium truck will cost from 37,294 Euros in its German home market.

At current exchange rates that's around £33,000 including VAT.

The X-Class is due for release in November and has been jointly developed with the Nissan-Renault Alliance with underpinnings shared by the Nissan Navara and the Renault Alaskan – a vehicle currently not sold in Britain.

The X-Class will be built in Spain, alongside the Navara and will also be produced in Argentina for other global markets.

With a payload of 1.1 tonnes and a towing ability of 3.5 tonnes, the X-Class is Mercedes' attempt to combine heavy duty workload with luxury appointments.

The cabin is large and has much of the design and features of a Mercedes saloon while the company claims it will drive in similar fashion to a passenger car.

ROUGH AND TOUGH: Mercedes takes work upmarket with the X-Class

Two 2.3-litre diesel engines developing either 163 or 190bhp will be available from launch with a 258bhp V6 diesel slated to arrive in

Measuring 5.34 metres in length the X-Class is significantly bigger than the Navara and of similar size to the Volkswagen Amarok which is also priced at the same level.

Rugged styling and 4x4 ability will give the X-Class all-terrain ability and those features will be enhanced with a permanent four-wheel-drive variant arriving next year.

A long wheelbase of 3,150mm results in a load bed length of 1,587 and Mercedes says the cargo area is big enough to transport 50 barrels of beer.

The trend for targeting the posh end of the truck market will also see the X-Class being offered with leather trim and upholstery with plenty of add-ons, including styling bars, side rails and load canopies.

Independent suspension at the front and coil springs all round are designed to give the X-Class good performance and ride under all conditions and the vehicle will be fitted with the likes of Mercedes' safety systems, such as Active Brake Assist, Lane Keeping Assist and Traffic Sign Assist, among others.

Options will include the Mercedes COMAND infotainment and connectivity systems and the top range X-Class will come with a seven-speed automatic transmission.

Tom's England call hits his dad for six

TOM Westley marked his selection for the England Test side by thanking two of the biggest influences on his career – his dad Adie and long-time county team-mate Alastair Cook.

Having been informed of his progression to the senior ranks for the third Test against South Africa, Westley, the 28-year-old Essex batsman, was keen to make one phone call.

"My dad has been the most influential person in my career. He was the first person I spoke to after the news came through," said Westley, who grew up playing cricket for his village side, Weston Colville, as well as Saffron Walden and Mildenhall.

"He's a builder, and he's not known for being very emotional.

"But he told me he was very proud, and said he might have to nip around the back of the scaffolding to shed a tear – in a monotone way, obviously."

Westley senior said: "I was happy when he first played professional cricket and I'm even prouder now.

"I just hope he will carry on the form he's been having. I think he will do, he's always risen to a challenge."

The son-to-father call was made soon after national selector James Whitaker had told Westley junior he would be reporting to the Kia Oval for the Test, which starts today.

However, one of the first incoming calls to congratulate him was from Cook, the former England captain who was also named in the 13-man squad.

Cricket

Westley said: "Cooky called me, just to say congratulations, the usual stuff between team-mates.

"If he could help in any way, he'd be on the end of a phone. He was in the car with his daughter Elsie, actually, so she said congratulations to me as well.

"I've learned so much from Cooky over the years. One of the big things is his demeanour, not just as a batsman but also as a person.

"He's an unbelievable role model, and after seeing him close-up with Essex for so long I'm looking forward to seeing him with England. We've had quite a few good partnerships with Essex, so hopefully we can do the same for England.

"I appreciate everything in Test cricket is going to be another step up in intensity, but I can take confidence from having faced the majority of their bowlers a few weeks ago and scored some runs."

Westley will replace the injured Gary Ballance at No 3, and his call-up has several things to recommend it, not least his right-handedness, with Cook, opening partner Keaton Jennings and Ballance all left-handers.

His long-time county association with Cook can also do him no harm and it is just two months since the pair scored twin hundreds in a 243-run stand against Hampshire at Chelmsford.

PROUD MOMENT: New England batsman Tom Westley and, inset, his father Adie.

Paffett staying positive after Mercedes' shock exit

GARY Paffett is doing his best to look on the bright side after Mercedes' shock announcement on Monday that they will be withdrawing from the DTM at the end of 2018 to join the growing Formula E Championship.

The Haverhill-based Mercedes driver admitted the news came as a total surprise to him and his team, but said that there may yet be an upside to the manufacturer's exit.

Motorsport

He said: "There have been discussions for years in DTM as manufacturers come and go, but Mercedes have been there from the start and I never really had any doubt that they would continue. So this was totally unexpected.

"The series was due a big regulation change from 2019 anyway, and there had already been discussions about things like engines.

"With new series chief Gerhard Berger – okay, it's not an ideal start for him with this – there's perhaps an opportunity to change the series and do something great. Hopefully they can look at things in a different way and look at the positives rather than dwell on the negatives."

Paffett, 36, champion in 2005, continued: "Obviously I'm not overjoyed with the situation because I have to start looking at other options but Mercedes have done well to give everyone time.

"There's 18 months left before they withdraw, so people have time to find something else.

"And, importantly, the series has 18 months to find its feet and see what it's going to do."

Scramble to success

SALLY Price, Anna Fairhead, Danielle Miller and Nervena Pyke combined to win the Topsy Turvy Texas Scramble at Haverhill Golf Club's Lady Captain's Day, hosted by Lindsey Cornish.

The men contested their own individual stableford, which Gerry Scott won with 40 points closely followed by club president Simon Cousins on 39.

Haverhill's Hambro team, led by captain Paul Bartlett, progressed to the semi-finals after a spirited win at home to Stowmarket. They will now play Gorleston at Bungay on Sunday, August 27.

But the club's Tolly team, captained by Eamonn Bareham, lost their quarter-final away to Ipswich.

In Haverhill ladies' latest midweek medal, first place was taken by Lyn Fish (35 points) on countback from Pat Kennedy.

The men's Jamie Warner Estate Agent Challenge attracted a field of 84 and was won by David Burns, who carded an excellent 40 points, and cut his handicap by one stroke.

Tom's England call hits his dad for six

TOM Westley marked his selection for the England Test side by thanking two of the biggest influences on his career – his dad Adie and long-time county team-mate Alastair Cook.

Having been informed of his progression to the senior ranks for the third Test against South Africa, Westley, the 28-year-old Essex batsman, was keen to make one phone call.

"My dad has been the most influential person in my career. He was the first person I spoke to after the news came through," said Westley, who grew up playing cricket for his village side, Weston Colville, as well as Saffron Walden and Mildenhall.

"He's a builder, and he's not known for being very emotional.

"But he told me he was very proud, and said he might have to nip around the back of the scaffolding to shed a tear – in a monotone way, obviously."

Westley senior said: "I was happy when he first played professional cricket and I'm even prouder now.

"I just hope he will carry on the form he's been having. I think he will do, he's always risen to a challenge."

The son-to-father call was made soon after national selector James Whitaker had told Westley junior he would be reporting to the Kia Oval for the Test, which starts today.

However, one of the first incoming calls to congratulate him was from Cook, the former England captain who was also named in the 13-man squad.

Cricket

Westley said: "Cooky called me, just to say congratulations, the usual stuff between team-mates.

"If he could help in any way, he'd be on the end of a phone. He was in the car with his daughter Elsie, actually, so she said congratulations to me as well.

"I've learned so much from Cooky over the years. One of the big things is his demeanour, not just as a batsman but also as a person.

"He's an unbelievable role model, and after seeing him close-up with Essex for so long I'm looking forward to seeing him with England. We've had quite a few good partnerships with Essex, so hopefully we can do the same for England.

"I appreciate everything in Test cricket is going to be another step up in intensity, but I can take confidence from having faced the majority of their bowlers a few weeks ago and scored some runs."

Westley will replace the injured Gary Ballance at No 3, and his call-up has several things to recommend it, not least his right-handedness, with Cook, opening partner Keaton Jennings and Ballance all left-handers.

His long-time county association with Cook can also do him no harm and it is just two months since the pair scored twin hundreds in a 243-run stand against Hampshire at Chelmsford.
